Gallaudet and Georgetown College Nines Won.

CURRENT SPORTING NOTES

Joyce's "Giants" from New York begin series of four games with the local nine this afternoon The concluding game of the first series between the Wagnerites and the Brooklyn Dodgers was won Saturday afternoon by the visitors, 9 to 8. It was the second ladies' day of the season, and their favorite, Winnie Mercer, pitched for the home team, and up to the sixth inning it was about an even thing. But after the Washington people had added two runs in that inning making their total six to three for their adversaries, Tommy Tucker started an onslaught on Mr. Mercer's curves which added six runs to their score. No more were made until the local players scored twice, but could not squeeze in the two necessary to win. Brown and Wrigley each made an error, while LaChance, Tucker and Hallman were the offenders on the side of the man were the offenders on the side of the visitors. The home people made eleven hits off Payne, while his supporters secured two more from Mercer. The game was a rather interesting one, but displayed the weakness of the home club through the absence of Reitz and McHale.

The Baltimores made a winning rally in the ninth, and beat the Bostons out by a run, in a very evenly played game, by 3 to 2. McJames and Nichols were the contesting pitchers, the former having a shade the better of the visitors' star twirler.

Gallaudet Defeated Johns Hopkins

University. The Gallaudet nine won its opening game in the schedule of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association of Maryland and the District of Columbia Saturday by defeating the team of Johns Hopkins University at the Maryland Athletic Club grounds, Baltimore, by 6 to 5. The association includes, besides these two colleges, St. John's, Western Maryland and Maryland Agricultural College; and Johns Hopkins has generally been reckoned the strongest.

The victors won through brilliant battery work and hard hitting. The fielding was also a brilliant feature, in spite of the few errors, none of which contributed to the home team's score. Hopkins made a strong rally in the latter part of the game, but could not overcome the Galkudet's lead. The line-up follows: J. H. U.

In March we had a freight wreck in our Hagerstown yard. Among the freight saved from the wreck were about 477 pairs of Ladies' Shoes which were consigned to you. These Shoes are in fair condition. The principal injury was from being thrown on the ground and spilled out of the paper boxes, some getting wet and nearly all of them more or less soiled. As these shoes bear your firm's name, we considered you could use them to better advantage than any other dealer, so will be glad to receive an offer for them. Awaiting an early reply, we remain, Yours, very truly, much to the pleasure of the occasion. The card called for five races, four or the flat and the fifth one over the full steeplechase course. The second race, the first Washington Nursery stakes, of $4,000 value, was the richest race run for here for very many years. It was for two-year-olds, at half a mile. Filigrane, R. W. Wal-den & Sons' bay colt, by imported Galore, out of Fillette, the 7 to 10 favorite, won easily from start to finish, beating Caout-chouc two lengths, she several more lengths in front of Counsellor Wernberg. Brown-Hatted Men of the National Guard Cheered on Their Way-Street Scenes

The department clerks and those employed in the business houses did not have the streets and street cars to themselves as usual between 8:30 and 9 o'clock this morning. Scores of other people, who seldom move out doors until an hour or two later were early astir, and by 8 o'clock there were lines of blue-coated, brownhatted and brown-leggined men, young, lusty, vigorous and expectant striding sturdily in the direction of National Guard headquarters at Center market. They went in couples and threes and more, but a large number of them were accompanied by their mothers or sisters, wives or sweetshowing in strong contrast to their loved ones' eager countenances. When the parting place came at the bridge leading to the armory there were many tears shed and many kisses exchanged, but each brave fellow went over with a lead of good wishes and loving counsels to cheer him

There was an immense crowd present turned out, and as they filed away-pictures of real war seen before in the capital city by few now living-cheers went up spon-

Generously Greeted.

The crowds were generous in their greet ings, but, of course, the scoffers and unbe lievers were there.

"Dey luks mighty putty now," said deleful sore of an old darkey, with a portentous shake of his head, "but dey ain" gwineter be so bootiful when dey bin out dar er chawin' hard tack an' er drinkin' puddle water 'bout two er tree munts." The old man evidently had some incident of the late war in his mind's eye. "You fellows ought to be out there in line," said a slick-looking young man with an unmistakable southern accent, address ing the old darkey. "There's a chance for you now to pay the debt you owe for your freedom."

"Huh!" ejaculated the other. "Freed'm Shuh, man, I'd jist gib my rite ahm ter hab dem slab'ry times back ergin!" With this unanswerable argument the de-

The crowds followed the soldiers along up the avenue, and when the halt was made and the soldiers turned back there were all sorts of surmises as to the cause John Fitz, the irrepressible ex-king of the newsboys, cocked his eye knowingly at a crewd of the curious.

"Shure," he remarked paternally, "don' ye know phwat's dthe matther? Whoi, ole Gin'l Roosle Algy don't want dthe b'ys t' git wit." This humorous explanation seemed to be contagious, and the tendency to fun of that account was pretty widespread. But even those who indulged in it were loud in their praises of the way the District Guardsmen bore themselves. "No play soldiers in that crowd," said an old retired army officer casting a critical eye over the column. "They look business from head to foot, every one of them." The Recruiting Station. The turn out of the guard inspired martial desires in many hearts, and perhaps to this was due the increase in inquiries at the recruiting office of the 7th Regiment of Virginia Volunteers. This is located in Cos three drug stores scattered through the city will be stopped Saturday next. This was the announcement made at the meeting of the Pharmaceutical Association of the District of Columbia, which was held this morning in the College of Pharmacy, on I street between 8th and 9th streets northwest. This result, however, was not reached at the meeting this morning, as the readers of The Star are aware. The druggists of the city have taken a prominent part in the movement of the citizens against the exactions and charges of the telephone company, and for some time it has been known that the members of the has been known that the members of the association did not propose to renew contracts with the telephone company for the coming year at the proposed rates.

Remove Telephones.

Wires to Be Removed From Buildings -Refusal to Accept Contract-The Resolutions Adopted.

In the case of a majority of the members the contracts expire Saturday, and it has been decided to stand together in this matter and refuse to continue the use of the proposes.

The meeting this morning was more for the purpose of a final conference than anywhen the various columns of the guard thing else. The president of the association, Mr. Robert N. Harper, anneunced that seventy-three druggists had signed an agreement which reads as follows:

"We, the members of the District of Cowe, the members of the District of Co-lumbia Pharmaceutical Association, unani-mously agree hot to sign any of the con-tracts that have been submitted by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

"Further, we hereby agree to continue "Further, we hereby agree to an animously with our present contract, and unanimously indorse the amendment to the District of Columbia appropriation bill regulating the telephone rates in the District of Columbia, the Columbia of Representatives which passed the House of Representatives which passed the House of Representatives February 2, 1898.

"We hereby agree to the above resolu-tions and will abide by the same."
It was stated that there were not more than eighty-five 'phones in use by the dr gists of the city.

A New Proposition.

In the course of the interchange of views the fact was brought out that different druggists had been approached in the interests of the telephone company with a proposition to sign a new contract, which would be good for a month or two months. and then for the balance of the year, if the subscriber should so desire. The opinion was expressed that this was merely a device to win over some of the druggists so as to prevent united action against the company.

In view of the agreement they had signed. it was stated by some of the members, they had refused to accept a new contract. The secretary was instructed to notify the signers of the agreement that the use of the telephones would cease Saturday, and that the company was to be notified to remove the 'phones, and also all wires from the buildings.

The Ultimatum

To make use of a war time expression the druggists have issued their ultimatum to the telephone company, and Saturday it will go into effect. It was stated that the main reason why the druggists have taken this action is because the regulations of the company prevented the granting of the the company prevented the granting of the accommodation to the public which the druggists had been accustomed to accord, so that people are now obliged to pay when they want to call a physician or to use the 'phones for some other emergency.

Proper notice of this action of the association will be sent to the Association of Telephone Subscribers and also to the Medical Association.
